GRAMMAR

Expressing abilities, possibilities and obligations

[can / could / be able to / must / should]; wish + simple past / past perfect

(Can / could / be able to)

(Check Grammar file, Unit 5, page 129)

► For some tenses, we have to use the verb be able to + the base form:

Future: I hope I'll be able to come to your graduation.

Present perfect: She hasn't been able to find a new job.

Infinitive: I'd like to be able to climb mountains

Must

A Form (Must + base form)

Statements: You must be more careful with your money.

Questions: Do I have to get a new passport?

Negative forms: You mustn't drive someone's car without asking them first.

Note: The more normal way of asking questions is: Do I have to...?

This is better than: Must I...?

- ▶ The form must does not change with different pronouns:

I must / mustn't He must / mustn't, etc.

- ▶ We use must / mustn't to refer to the present and the future:

You must pay your university fees either today or tomorrow.

- ▶ For some tenses we use the verb have to + base form.

Past simple: I had to pay a large fine.

B Use / Meaning

1 Must / mustn't is used for obligations that the speaker feels strongly about:

I must finish this letter before I go to bed. / You must wear a seat belt at all times.

2 We also use must / mustn't for strong advice or recommendations:

You must see your doctor – you look terrible!

3 We use the negative, mustn't, to tell someone not to do something or to say that something is wrong.

You mustn't steal. / You mustn't make a noise after midnight.

Note: We use mustn't or can't to refer to things people are not allowed to do:

You mustn't / can't eat in the library.

4 For rules or laws, we normally use have to / don't have to, but if you personally agree strongly with the rule or law, use must / mustn't:

You must wear a school uniform. / You mustn't make a loud noise in public places.

You have to register with the police. / You don't have to pay for water in restaurants.

Wish + simple past / past perfect

We use wish + the past simple tense of the verb to express that we want a situation in the present (or future) to be different:

a. I wish I spoke Italian. (I don't speak Italian.)

b. I wish I had a big car. (I don't have a big car.)

We use wish + the past perfect tense of the verb to express a regret, in the past to be different:

a. I wish I hadn't eaten so much. (I ate a lot.)

b. I wish they'd come on holiday with us. (They didn't come on holiday with us.)

I wish + past simple

To express that we want a situation in the present to be different

{1} My name is Steven. On the eve of my 18-month smoke-free milestone, I am feeling nostalgic and grateful and moved to share my story. Well, one night I was at a party, and someone offered me a cigarette. I took it and never looked back. I bought a pack the next day and began my new identity as a 'not so good boy' smoker.

{2} When I was 12 years old, my dad quit smoking, and once told me that if he ever saw me smoking, it would be like putting a stake through his heart. I never let him see me smoke. When I finally became an engineer, I didn't want my colleagues to know that I was a smoker, so I was careful not to let them see me. I also knew that my health was being affected by my addiction. I used to wake up during the night coughing. I wouldn't know until after I quit smoking that my smoking had also likely caused my chronic back pain.

{3} I found a Website called "The No Smoke Café". I read everything I could read about the addiction and quitting, and I paid close attention to what people were thinking and feeling as they began their journey to freedom from nicotine. I wanted to quit more than I wanted to keep smoking, so I chose a quit date, January 13, 2002, and I decided that I would use a patch. I researched the Nicotine Replacement Therapy's too, weaning off the nicotine after smoking 2 packs a day for 14 years made the best sense to me. I broadcast my first post on the website 18 hours after my quit, and I have been smoke-free ever since.

{4} I owe my success so far to The No Smoke Café for providing a place for people to support each other. I believe that support is the main factor in successfully quitting smoking. Now, after 3 years and a half, there's nothing I enjoy more than trying to help others realize their goal of freedom from nicotine. Quitting smoking isn't that easy, but almost nothing in life that's worthwhile is, and it is easier when you don't have to do it alone.
